CLCT 2025 ONLINE SUMMER PROGRAM

INTRODUCTION TO LAW

How are laws made? What is the purpose and function of our legal system?

Introduction to Law tackles these fundamental questions about our legal system through interactive discussions, case studies, and legal simulations. The program offers both completion and participation certificates, as well as networking opportunities with leading scholars at America's first law school.

Students will learn how to read foundational cases and write a legal memorandum in this 4-day, 12-hour course.

INTRODUCTION TO SEARCH & SEIZURE

What is probable cause? When is evidence admissible at trial? How does the law protect your privacy?

Learn the answers to these questions and more in the Introduction to Search & Seizure course, where students are introduced to the Fourth Amendment, limits on law enforcement's power to search and seize, and exceptions to probable cause requirements. Criminal law expert and Chancellor Professor of Law Fredric Lederer will teach this exciting course.

This 2-day, 8-hour course introduces students to the unique procedures governing our criminal law system.

INTRODUCTION TO AI

Curious about AI but don't have a technical background? Look no further!

Our Intro to AI is your crash course on AI and machine learning—how they work, what makes them different from traditional programming, and the risks they introduce. We'll dive into legal topics like copyright, privacy, and due process, then wrap up with a lively discussion on how society should navigate this powerful tech. Intro to AI will be taught by Daniel Shin, a cybersecurity researcher specializing in the legal implications of emerging technologies like AI and blockchain with a focus on privacy, civil liberties, and cybersecurity law.

This 2-day, 8-hour course will explore the promise and pitfalls of AI in a fun, accessible way!
