Correlations

Unaffiliated vs Dem/Rep

- 2016 (Presidential Race)
 - At the precinct level Unaffiliated voted at the same proportion as Clinton/Trump registered split
 - .98 correlation (1.0 is perfect correlation) at precinct level
 - In other words, unaffiliated split was at the proportion as the Dem/Rep registered voter split

Party & Bonds

- 2016 (Clinton & Yes):
 - Housing Bond had a .96 correlation
 - Parks Bond had a .64 correlation – 2 areas of GSO voted larger proportion Clinton & No
 - Trans Bond had a .76 correlation – 2 areas of GSO voted larger proportion Clinton & No
 - Community & Econ Devel Bond had a .93 correlation
- 2008 Primary (Democratic Candidate & Yes):
 - School Bond had a .43 correlation
 - Why? Maybe due to primary allows for unaffiliated to vote either party,

Key Takeaways

- Can use the Dem/Rep registration split to see how unaffiliated should vote
- In general, those that voted for the Democratic presidential candidate more heavily supported the bonds
 - There are precincts that are exceptions to this
- Around 9% of voters did not vote on the school bonds

Open Questions

- Can you track current election absentee/early voting by precinct to determine where to focus on election day?

Precinct Landscape

Strategy

Starting point

- If we assume 250k-300k votes on the school bond question, we need more than 125k-150k voting YES
- As of now we have limited volunteer resources
- Some tools available: mailers, yard signs, volunteer canvassing/texting, volunteers at early voting & election day sites

Multi-pronged Strategy

1. Mailers to all registered voters in precinct areas that voted Clinton>Trump AND 90%+ answered the bond question AND 75%+ voted YES to Park bond question (100k registered voters – if have 25k mailers target those that typically vote)
2. Yard signs, texting, volunteers at early voting site, focused endorsements in precinct areas that voted Clinton>Trump AND <90% answered the bond question OR <75% voted YES to Park bond question (143k registered voters)
3. Texting, focused endorsements on areas Trump>Clinton (122k registered voters)
